Dear Friends:

WorldTeach is a non-profit, non-governmental organization that provides opportunities for individuals to make a meaningful contribution to international education by living and working as volunteer teachers in developing countries.

WorldTeach was founded in 1986, in response to the need for educational assistance in developing countries. It also addressed a growing interest among people in the U.S. and elsewhere to serve, teach and learn as volunteers overseas. Since its inception, WorldTeach has placed thousands of volunteer educators in communities throughout the world.

Volunteers in Namibia work as English, Mathematics, Science, and Computer Studies Subject Teachers in a wide range of institutions, including primary schools, secondary schools, and adult training facilities. Daniel Tao and Kathryn Morrison were WorldTeach volunteers in north-central Namibia from December 2007-December 2008 and demonstrated terrific dedication in a number of areas. In addition to their regular teaching load, they were both highly active in extra-curricular activities (computer literacy projects, debate clubs, and website development for the school, various fundraising campaigns, after school recreation club, and more).

As manifest from the above-mentioned activities, I believe Daniel and Kathryn really went above and beyond during their time of service in Namibia. With this being said, it came as no surprise when I learned that they continue to stay involved in the lives Namibia's youth, specifically through their newly created Namibian Dreams project. I would like to take this opportunity to wish them all the best successes and to offer a personal thank you for all their hard work and dedication.

Good luck and keep up the great work!

Sincerely,
